No Holiday Celebration Is Planned

Andover will not celebrate the Fourth of July.

Except in the hearts and minds of private citizens, there will be no observance of the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Veterans' Services Agent Francis P. Markey said nothing has been done by the local veterans' organizations because there is no money available.

The town meeting last March refused a request for money to buy fire works, he pointed out. That

Fund Trustees To Decide Soon On Using Money

A decision on how to spend some $18,000 in the Andover Servicemen's fund will be made July 14.

A meeting last Thursday, June 23, did not include complete membership of the trustees, she said. Member J. Everett Collins was unable to attend, it was explained.

The trustees did not feel that a decision should be made on spending

School Board Will Also Plan Future Schools

The new high school is "under-planned as far as size is concerned."

Thus spoke Atty. Anna M. Greeley, chairman of the school committee, this week.

"If any suggestions are to be made to the building committee about including provisions for enlarging it, now is the time," she continued.

Miss Greeley suggested that the new sub-committee on school planning appointed last week may have recommendations to make on that score, within the immediate future.

Hilton Cormey, 122 Holt rd., sure is a lucky man.

He somersaulted about 28 feet, involuntarily, when a lightning bolt struck the pavement just as he stepped out of a Main st. manhole. He landed in Barnard park, having lost the heel of his right shoe and dazed by the blast. No other injuries were evident, however.

Cormey had one foot on the ground and the other on a ladder inside the manhole when the lightning struck. He had been repairing a telephone cable under the road with his partner, Kenneth S. Marshal of No. Andover.

Police Officer Henry B. Smith, in the nearby traffic control booth, saw the accident and rushed to Cormey's aid. He said the local man was stunned but got up "after a minute" and rushed over to the open manhole where Marshal was. The pair found him sitting on a wooden box underground. He had had the foresight to pick his feet up off the ground, thus not feeling the impact when the lightning hit.

A physician said Cormey had not been injured by the bolt, except for a slight burn on his lower right leg.

The two workers immediately closed up the manhole and "called it a day". The accident happened in mid-afternoon during a severe thunder storm.

Expect Protests At Appeal Board Meeting Tonight

Ballardvale residents are expected to protest vehemently tonight as the zoning appeals board hears a petition of the Essex Sand and Gravel company for permission to remove gravel on its property at the rear of Andover and Woburn sts.

The residents of that section appeared last week, protesting allowing any further gravel pits in the section.

They cited danger to children, noise, property damage, dust, confusion, spillage as among the reasons why the appeals board should restrict gravel pits in the area.

The hearings were held under a town law which states that all gravel pits shall be licensed by the town, under the appeals board and subject to whatever restrictions are placed on them by that board.

Atty. James E. Eastham, chairman of the board, Member Edward P. Hall and Associate Member Walter C. Tomlinson heard several applications for the licenses.

The Ballardvale residents first centered their fire against the application of John L. Cyr, who asked to remove gravel from the south side of County rd. near Foster's pond, from the east side of Beacon st. and the west side of Woburn st.

They later concentrated their objections against an application from James E. O'Donnell Jr., seeking permission to remove gravel from Andover st. property now owned by Earl E. Brown Jr.

The Essex Sand and Gravel company has a pit near the O'Donnell site, with residents promising to be present when that license request is heard.

Drainage Big Problem

Chairman Sidney P. White, board of public works, said he never has seen as many drainage problems as have come up in past year-and-a-half. Claims engineering department badly overloaded with work.

Charles Fowler and Raymond Jesuit protested about drainage on Lincoln st. Board will investigate.

Yale Road Accident

Yale rd. residents complained to board of public works about the end of the road where sand has been used to fill rocky hole. Robert Westbrook, age seven, fell into one and neighbors said it was a hard job to extricate him.

Board will fill with sand and wash it in with water, then filling with small stone.

Remember This Scene?

This is a glimpse of what Shaw-sheen square looked like some 40 years ago when it was Frye Vil-lage. This view is of the main street, facing north. The building on the right, just behind the trol-ley tracks, was the village hall and stood just about where the po-lice shanty now stands or possi-bly a little closer to the Haverhill st. corner. It was moved to Balmoral st. where it now is the home of the Neil family.

The houses on the left of the street were located on what is now the town lot where the large pine tree stands. These houses were moved to various parts of the village, some to Balmoral st. and some to Canterbury st.

Some of you who can remember the square looking like this will probably recognize the houses and most likely know more about where they have been moved than I do.

There was also a row of similar houses behind the row in the picture located approximately where Marwood Drive comes in. The last house on the left in the picture was known as Morgan's Beehive with the lower half being used as the local store. Its location would be about where the Merrimac Mutual building now stands.

$95,000 ESTATE

An estimated estate of $95,000 was left by Mrs. Georgia Rowley Thompson according to her will, filed recently in Salem.

Mrs. Frances T. Heeley of Lawrenceville, N.J., was named to receive all tangible personal property and will receive income from a trust fund originally established by the late Augustus P. Thompson for his wife. On the daughter's death, the income will go to her husband, Allan V. Heely. On the demise of both, the principal is to go directly to the children of Mrs. Thompson's brother-in-law, Charles D. Thompson of Andover. If none are living, the sum is to be given to the Lawrenceville school, Lawrenceville, N.J., the will stated.

The residue of the estate is to be added to a trust fund created under an indenture signed the same day as the will, Nov. 16, 1953.

Many Enroll In Pomp's Classes

Pomp's pond activities were off to a fast start this week, with heavier-than-usual use of the facilities reported.

Several hundred persons enjoyed the swimming both afternoons and evenings during the week and many more signed up and began swimming classes.

While registration has been heavy, Mr. Dunn pointed out that those desiring instruction may still register for a class.

Be Fully Informed

But deliberations on the size of the new high school, if they do arise, will be only a small part of the new committee's function.

Miss Greeley, obviously anxious to avoid having the committee uninformed about school needs, intends that the sub-committee shall provide sufficient information to back up any recommendations the school committee may make. Secretary William Doherty, Albert Cole Jr. and Roy Russell are its members.

From its research will come the facts and figures, she asserted, that will be a basis for deciding where a new school is needed, what type it should be and where it should be located to best serve its purpose.

"We want to be so strengthened with information and plans," the committee chairman declared, "that we will avoid all future argument."

Up To Building Committee

Commenting on the new high school, Miss Greeley said the new sub-committee may make some recommendations on its size. If that occurs, and the full committee votes a recommendation, it will be up to the building committee to either accept or reject the suggestion, as that committee was placed in charge of the project by town meeting.

If a recommendation is made and accepted by the building committee to immediately increase the size of the building, it would call for a special town meeting. For that move would cost money not appropriated in March.

A recommendation to allow for expansion beyond the figure of 1000 now held by the building committee, if accepted by that committee, would not require town meeting action as it would cost no more, she stated.

Want 2000 Capacity

Miss Greeley recalled that several members of the school committee have previously expressed dissatisfaction with the proposed 750-student-capacity of the new school.

The building committee is having plans drawn on that basis, but with "corps" facilities for 1000. Thus, such integral parts of the building as gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria, workshops and the like would be built at the 1000-enrollment size. Any additions, then, would only include classrooms.

Several members of the school board, Miss Greeley pointed out, have thought that 2000 might be a more practical maximum figure on which to base construction and plans for eventual additions.

Construction Costs Up

Miss Greeley also mentioned construction costs as one major factor to be considered in any discussion of constructing a larger school now rather than waiting a few years to build an addition. The costs keep going up, she pointed out, indicating that a later addition might cost the town more than building a larger plant now. Then too, she declared, there may be other construction necessary in the next few years.

Industry Needed

"There is a saturation point in the size of a school system's plant," Chairman Greeley admitted, "but we haven't reached it yet."

She vigorously pointed out, however, that "sometime we won't be able to support it if we have no new industry."

"Unless the whole picture is put into balance," she continued, "with industry considered immediately," there will come a time when it will be hard to keep a large school system going.

Long-Range Plan

That it will be larger can't be doubted. Miss Greeley revealed that the committee will no doubt offer a long-range plan to town meeting next March.

"It seems to take two years for every new move," she said, "so if you know now what you'll need two years from now, you should get it ready."

"If you look four years ahead you won't have to be running around when the need is pressing," commented Miss Greeley.

Weddings...

DOMASINSKY - DOWNS

Miss Rita A. Downs, R.N., daughter of Mrs. Rita A. Downs, 125 N. Main st., and the late Edward Downs, became the bride of Joseph G. Domasinski, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, 922 West Arizona st., Philadelphia, Pa., at a 10 o'clock nuptial Mass in St. Augustine's church, June 11. The Rev. Henry B. Syvinski, O.S.A., officiated before an altar arranged with snapdragons and palm.

Given in marriage by her godfather, John Tighe, the bride wore a gown of white satin, nylon tulle and Chantilly lace, the lace bodice featured an illusion neckline and the full bouffant skirt ended in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of Chantilly lace and seed pearls and she carried a prayer book marked with an orchid and Stephanotis streamers.

A reception in the Shawsheen Manor followed the ceremony with guests present from Cambridge, Pennsylvania, Bradford, Woburn, Wellesley and Maine.

The bride is a graduate of Pynchard high school, Chelsea Memorial hospital and Boston university and is a 1st. Lieutenant with the USAF. The bridegroom was graduated from Northeastern university and is serving with the Army, stationed at Fort Devens.

Miss Sally Ann Bergeron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Bergeron, 253 Andover st. became the bride of John Albert Pollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Pollard, 187 Washington st., Wellesley Hills, at a ceremony Saturday in St. Augustine's church. The Rev. Henry B. Smith, O.S.A. officiated before an altar arranged with white peonies.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of plain and embroidered white swiss organdy fashioned with scalloped neckline and matching gauntlets, bouffant skirt ending in a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of embroidered organdy and she carried a cascade of white daisies and baby breath.

The maid of honor, Miss Patricia M. Bergeron, sister of the bride, wore pale blue and white organdy and carried a cascade of blue delphinium.

Robert A. Pollard served as best man for his brother and the ushers were William Pollard of Grand Rapids, Mich., and James R. Rice of Gloucester.

A reception in the Andover Inn followed the ceremony.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Yarmouth where they plan to spend the summer.

Sub-Committee's Job Hard

We agree with school committee member Albert Cole Jr. that there is a lot of responsibility attached to the sub-committee now studying school growth and potential needs.

It will be a big job, but one worth doing.

Tentative figures recently issued by the superintendent indicate the rapidly increasing school population. There can be no doubt that serious planning must be undertaken to meet the demands of the children who are only now entering their school years.

In many communities, there is a tendency to wait until the great need for schools is at hand. Only then do those communities act to relieve the situation.

That should not be the case in Andover. The school committee's own sub-committee can and should predict where the next new school will be needed and how large it must be, without requiring a time-consuming study by a lay group.

The planning board, whose cooperation is essential, will no doubt work closely with the committee to plan proper site location, development of plans and many other details.

Then, when the school committee sees a crisis coming, in which schools will become hopelessly overcrowded, it can submit plans for construction well before it is at hand. Thus, a new school, additions or whatever the committee and town meeting feels necessary could be constructed in time to meet the greatest need.

It has been a sad commentary on current school problems that many towns and cities no sooner get a building up than it is overcrowded. That happens because there is no adequate planning.

We will not have that situation — an intolerable one — here as long as the sub-committee functions smoothly and works at the job.

Building figures and all other yardsticks commonly used indicate a terrific growth in Andover population during the next few years. It stands to reason that school population will grow correspondingly.

It is well to be prepared with plans for the future so that we won't wind up asking "Why didn't we do something sooner?"

Sad State Of Affairs

This week's page one story on Fourth of July activities here is a sad commentary on the community.

The item points out that there will be no celebration — because no money was appropriated for it by town meeting and because the veterans' organizations can't see their way clear to putting up all the money.

The Fourth will pass unrecognized, except in the hearts and minds of the individual. We feel it to be a sad state of affairs when the community fails to recognize such an important national anniversary.

Maybe the people who can accomplish anything in a pinch should be pinched more often.

George Merrill, Teacher Here, Will Study Shakespeare In Britain

GEORGE MERRILL

A junior high school teacher will study for one year in England, beginning in September.

George Merrill, who was re-elected this spring for his second year as an English and social studies teacher, has received a scholarship for foreign study.

He was one of three successful applicants for the Caleb Dustin Hunking foreign scholarship. It carries a $1600 allowance.

Haverhill Natives Only

The scholarship is awarded only to natives of Haverhill who are residents of that city and graduates of its high school. Eight persons applied this year, Mr. Merrill stated.

He plans to attend, for the second year, the Shakespeare

Institute at Stratford on Avon.

Mr. Merrill won the scholarship two years ago and studied at the British institute for 11 months. While in Europe, he hitchhiked through 15 countries.

B. U. Graduate

He is a Boston university graduate, holding a B.S. degree in American literature. Completion of this second year in England will probably bring a master's degree if not a Ph.D., the 23-year-old teacher-student declared.

Likes Andover

"I like Andover very much", he asserted and continued "I'd like to come back here when I've finished this year's study".

The matter of living expenses while on such a scholarship isn't very important, he explained. The 1953 trip, with all the extra travel, cost only $1900 he said. That was just $300 more than the scholarship allowed.

Thus, Mr. Merrill pointed out, he could spend his time studying and travelling without worrying about financial problems.

PH. D. Possible

Although he will have spent only two years at the British school, he explained that receiving his Ph. D. would not be impossible. "There isn't as much difference there, as here, between the two degrees", he pointed out, making it possible to get a Ph.D. without first spending the customary two years working towards a master's degree.

O'CONNOR — DONOHUE

Thomas L. Donohue of 259 South st., Lowell, announces the marriage of his sister, Elizabeth Ann, to Edward J. O'Connor, 195 Holt rd., at St. Peter's church, Lowell, June 14.

WEBB — DUMONT

Miss Joan L. Dumont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dumont, Tewksbury st., was united in marriage recently with William E. Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Webb, Boise, Idaho. The ceremony took place in Charleston, S.C., in St. John's church.

The former Miss Dumont graduated from Pynchard high school and the Lowell General hospital. She is currently serving a two-year enlistment in the Navy Nurse corps.

Mr. Webb is a graduate of the University of Idaho, earning his bachelor of science degree in the pre-medical course. He plans to enter medical school in the fall.

WHITE — MURDOCK

At a 3 o'clock ceremony June 18 in Crane chapel of Tufts university, Medford, Miss Catharen Webster Murdock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Murdock of Foster, R.I., became the bride of James Arthur White, son of Clyde A. White, 163 River st. and the late Mrs. Marguerite Ganter White. Dr. Charles S. Milligan of West Somerville performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white Chantilly lace over blush satin with a fitted bodice and illusion neckline trimmed with seeded pearls. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a coronet of seeded pearls and she carried an old fashioned bouquet of white carnations, baby's breath and pink rosebuds. The maid of honor, Miss Beverly C. Murdock, sister of the bride, wore a ballerina length gown of aqua taffeta with a headpiece of pink roses and net. The junior bridesmaid, Janet B. Murdock, sister of the bridegroom, wore pale pink nylon tulle. Both attendants carried old fashioned bouquets of pink carnations and rosebuds.

Roland K. Hawkes of No. Andover served as best man and the ushers were H. Kenneth Murdock, brother of the bride, and Peter Ganter, cousin of the bridegroom, of Dorchester.

A reception on the terrace of the Crane chapel followed the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to Blackstone, the couple will reside at 53 Raymond ave., West Somerville.

The bride is a graduate of Classical high school, Providence, R.I. and will enter her senior year at Jackson college in September. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pynchard high school and will enter his sophomore year at Tufts School of Religion in the fall. He served with the air force for three years.

The board, with Chairman Kirk Batcheller and members Virginia Hammond and Lee Noyes present, voted unanimously to withhold approval of the sub-division plans. Mr. Leathers then agreed that new plans would be presented.

The planning board explained that there will be a public hearing on the proposal before it is approved.

Police Shoot At Fleeing Vehicle; Stop It In Sq.

Guns barked and bullets whined along Main st. early last Saturday morning.

From them came the capture of a Malden man whose car finally skidded to a halt in the square. The driver attempted to flee from the allegedly-stolen car.

No. Reading police swept into town at about the same time, having trailed the Malden man along route 28. Shots from the No. Reading police guns smashed the rear window but had failed to halt the vehicle.

Andover Patrolman James Gorie pumped a shot or two into the car as it swept by the intersection of Chestnut st. In the square, Sgt. James R. Lynch fired a blast from a shotgun. He and Patrolman Frank Loza made the capture as the driver, Paul L. Mahoney, darted out the right hand door of the car and attempted to run. A laceration in his side, thought to be a bullet wound, came from a projection on the door.

Several bullet holes were visible in the car and the rear window was shattered, with glass strewn over the back seat.

No. Reading police said they had fired warning shots at the car after it allegedly side-swiped two cars on Route 62 in their home town. They claimed its speed along Route 28 went from 90 to 100 miles, despite continuous revolver fire.

Malden authorities said the car had been taken about 9:30 Saturday night in that city. Wakefield and Lynnfield police had failed to catch the vehicle in their communities and the No. Reading police picked up the chase when the car was seen on Chestnut st., that town.

The car was taken to Andover police headquarters, where it was examined by local and No. Reading police.

Mahoney, in custody of the No. Reading officers, appeared in Woburn district court Saturday and pleaded guilty to several charges. He was held in lieu of $500 bail for hearing on Monday, police said. Other charges would be brought against him.

HOW TO SPEND $18,000 A VITAL QUESTION

Spending the money without all members present, Miss Greeley said. She said various ideas in regard to spending the money were discussed by the trustees present. Included was discussion of a proposed new veterans' building which would house all veterans' organizations in the town.

"We're trying to find the right answer," she declared. Part of the problem, Miss Greeley pointed out, lies in determining an alternate practical solution if the trustees decide a veterans' building is not the proper solution.

The trustees of the fund have said that an open meeting will be called sometime after they have reached a decision, at which the matter will be thoroughly discussed among all veterans wishing to attend as well as representatives of the four veterans' organizations.

PERSONAL
Miss Helen Robertson received an "Outstanding" rating recently for her work in the federal extension service, USDA.

Spade And Trowel Garden Club Elects Mrs. J. Pritchard

Mrs. John Pritchard was elected president of the Spade and Trowel Garden club at the annual meeting of that group.

Other officers elected at the final meeting of the year were Mrs. Robert McAnern, vice president; Mrs. Warren Oldaker, recording secretary; Mrs. Herbert Andersen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Peregrin Schwarzer, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Sherman III, conservation chairman; Mrs. Charles Cottrell, horticulture chairman; Mrs. John Brown, program chairman.

The club gave a rising vote of thanks to its advisor, Mrs. Frank Benton, for her cooperation during the year and particularly for her display of native, wild plants at the Andover Garden show.

The group will next meet Oct. 11 and thereafter on the second Tuesday of each month.

At The Library

Every so often there's a book that more or less "comes to meet one" out of all that appear on the library shelves, and from time to time a suggestion of one that is particularly appealing to one of the library staff might be well to note; such a book is John Schindler's "How To Live 365 Days A Year". It is intended to define the six basic needs of human beings — love, security, creative expression, recognition, new experience and self-esteem . . . author is chairman of the Department of Medicine at Monroe Clinic, in Wisconsin . . . Puppet makers have been having a hey-day and their work will come to useful ends next September with the autumn puppet plays . . . next group will meet Aug. 1 . . . Plans are being made for the annual Open House in November — save a Sunday afternoon, it's worth it . . . Have all the good secretaries of all the clubs forgotten about their town calendar, kept at the library to prevent conflicts in dates of meetings, suppers, fairs, bakery sales, etc . . . it's like a check, no good unless you sign it . . . The Gora Pettit exhibit has attracted no small amount of comment and may still be seen at the library . . . these 36 drawings clearly show why Miss Pettit won the November Club art scholarship . . . A recent article on reading stated that the U.S. spends four times as much for comics each year as for the total book budget of American public libraries . . . And don't forget to look in on the rose display, weather permitting — in the main reading room — from June 28 on . . . A lovely way to end off a lovely month . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sharpe of Andover st. and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker of Andover enjoyed a motor trip to Lake Winnasquam, N.H., on Sunday.

NO GARBAGE FOUND IN BALLARDVALE BROOK

brook was also carefully inspected and nothing except sand was found to be entering the water.

Mrs. Wendell Hopkins, charging some weeks ago that the brook is "an open cesspool" in the summer, also said much garbage appeared in the water as it ran downstream past her Chester st. home.

No Rush To Connect

No special activity in regard to connecting home plumbing into the sewer has been observed, the board of health chairman stated. He said a couple of applications have been received but there has been no rush on the part of most home owners to connect their plumbing to the municipal line.

Year's Grace Period

It has previously been pointed out that there is a year's period in which connection to the sewer line is voluntary. After that time, connection can be required by the board of health. The year, in this case, expires next January, giving homeowners all summer to make the connection.
